

Is There Hope for Harmony in the World?

Doing good deeds, little by little, can help us reach world harmony. Every day, many people do their part to make the world a better place. There are many people who raise money to help those in need; while others go out of their way to be nice to people and perform random acts of kindness. Some people start organizations to help a cause worth supporting. World harmony is still achievable, we just need to want it bad enough. When in need, we can come together as a community to help each other. Through these selfless and caring actions, we can achieve world harmony.

We can start climbing the ladder to world harmony by raising money for a good cause. Recently I ran a 5K to find a cure for breast cancer. We came together as a community, we brought awareness to this problem; we raised money, and had fun together as a team. In these types of events we meet many people who have been through this illness in their lives, and others who just want to help the lives of others. All kinds of people coming together, can bring harmony to the work and make it a better place.

By being nice to people you meet every day is a great way to bring peace, and harmony in the world. My parents always remind me of that, we don't know what someone else's life is like. When we meet someone we don't know, think for a second that they may be going through a hard time. It's important to be nice to everyone you meet, ask how they are doing, or simply open doors for others. These are just small ways we can change the world in a big way. Just by simply smiling, and saying hello to someone can change their day. You never know, sometimes a stranger can become your best friend.

A great way to make an impact in the world is by joining or organization for something you want to change. My brother and I started an organization to collect glasses for underprivileged people. We named it Help Them See. We didn't know what to do with all those old glasses we had, and we read somewhere how kids all over the world did not have the money to buy glasses. We teamed up with an organization that gives free eye exams. My brother and I have shipped over three hundred pairs of glasses to people all over the world.

World harmony is achievable. Imagine if we all did something nice for someone else. There would be less wars, less families breaking apart, less people with depression, and problems. We would all be a healthier society, and with less stress. It does not matter your age, nationality, religion, where you live or how much money you have, we have the power to make our world a happy and peaceful home.
